ELIZABETH MINER

Speaker | Author | Executive Advisor

Founder, Miner Enterprise, LLC | elizabethminer.net

Elizabeth Miner speaks on the human operating system underneath leadership and performance. Her work sits at the intersection of emotional intelligence and executive decision-making, drawn from two decades inside organizations including Apple Inc. and Thermo Fisher Scientific, and a decade of practical research working alongside executives and entrepreneurs navigating the highest-stakes transitions of their careers.

She is the author of The Entrepreneur Advantage and The Flip Side of Failure, and speaks to audiences domestically and internationally.

SIGNATURE TALKS

The Human Operating System: EQ in the Era of AI

What the leadership layer underneath AI integration looks like in practice, what is required in today's environment and what happens when organizations skip it.

Leading Like You Were Built To

The leadership style women were trained out of is the one organizations need now. This talk shows leaders how to reclaim it.

The Leadership Layer No One Is Developing

The infrastructure gap between what organizations invest in and what drives team performance and retention. This is about the foundational work that must exist before any EQ training program can take hold.

Custom topics developed in collaboration with your organization are always welcome.
